

Ways to Track Development Review

1 SIGNS

First things first, we need to let the neighborhood know. Have you seen our Development Under Review signs? For most of us, this sign is the first alert to possible changes. Use the sign number to track down more information, or you can use a street name or keyword. When a sign goes up the development application information is reflected in our Development Under Review list and map on the Town website at timnath.org/planning.

2 DEVELOPMENT EMAIL

Next, you need timely information. What better way than development emails directly to your inbox? This email is full of new development applications, proposals, public hearing and neighborhood meeting notices, hearing decisions, and more. Called Community Development Updates, it's your key to staying in the loop on Town development projects. Sign up for the newsletter on the Town website.

3 DEVELOPMENT UNDER REVIEW LIST

Now that you have the basics, how about a web-based tab with all the info? Here you'll find many ways to sort and use all the pieces.

- Take a look at a table of all proposals underway. It's searchable, sortable, and linked to all available public documents.
- Access development plans.

Look up a project by map, project number, or sign number.

4 INTERACTIVE MAPS

Like maps? Navigate to the website at timnath.org/planning and see or locate proposals on a map. Zoom in to your block or take in the whole Town.

5 PUBLIC HEARINGS

In-person or live-streamed

You can attend a public meeting in person or you can check out what the Commission and Council is deliberating with online agendas, minutes, and videos on the meeting website.
